DANGEROUS DORIAN

As the second-strongest Atlantic storm on record idled over the Bahamas Monday, where 220 mph wind gusts and rising waters leveled homes and led to five confirmed deaths, state officials from Florida to South Carolina gave evacuation orders to a million people preparing to receive the Category 4 hurricane on U.S. East Coast shores this week. 4

36 Arrested at 'Straight Pride Parade'

The controversial and city-approved "Straight Pride Parade," organized by Super Happy Fun America, went ahead as scheduled on Saturday, Aug. 31, with hundreds of marchers from Copley Square to City Hall defending traditional families and heterosexuality, and carrying signs touting pro-Trump slogans. They were outnumbered by counterprotesters along the route, who in confrontations with police were subdued with pepper spray. The Boston Police Department said on Sunday it will review officers' use of force at the event, and will also review reports by four officers who suffered non-life-threatening injuries. MATT KINSEY | GETTY IMAGES

AG Barr: Expedited death penalty for mass shooters

2 U.S. Attorney General William Barr has drafted legislation that would speed the death penalty for people who have committed mass murder, a White House official said on Monday. Marc Short, chief of staff to Vice President Mike Pence, told reporters on Air Force 2 that the measure would be part of a package of gun legislation that the White House intends to propose to Congress.

Pence, who is traveling in Europe, had been in contact with Barr about the issue, Short said. The White House has been working on measures to address gun violence after several recent mass shootings. President Donald Trump has voiced support for tackling mental health issues related to the violence while also looking at expanded background checks, an issue on which he has wavered. REUTERS

US to pull 5,000 troops from Afghanistan: Negotiator

3 The United States would withdraw almost 5,000 troops from Afghanistan and close five bases within 135 days under a draft peace accord agreed with the Taliban, the chief U.S. negotiator, Zalmay Khalilzad, said on Monday. The deal, reached after months of negotiations with representatives from the insurgent movement, must still be approved by U.S. President Donald Trump before it can be signed, Khalilzad said in an interview with Tolo News television. "In principle, we have got there," he said. "The document is closed." In exchange for the phased withdrawal, the Taliban would commit not to allow Afghanistan to be used by militant groups such as al Qaeda or Islamic State as a base for attacks on the U.S. and its allies. Khalilzad said the aim of the deal was to end the war and that it would lead to a reduction in violence. REUTERS

Greece moves hundreds of asylum-seekers from camp

4 Greece began moving hundreds of asylum-seekers on Monday from a camp on the island of Lesbos that holds around four times the number of people it was built for. Over 11,000 refugees and migrants, most of whom have fled war or poverty in the Middle East, Asia or Africa, are holed up at Moria in Europe's biggest migrant camp. Some 635 people, mostly families, boarded a passenger ship on Monday for facilities in northern Greece, and more were due to leave later in the day. Moving asylum-seekers from island camps to the mainland is part of government measures announced on Aug. 31 to deal with the rising numbers. All of Greece's five formal island camps are over capacity. Moria, which is a disused military base, has been criticized by humanitarian organizations for its squalid living conditions. Greece is Europe's main gateway for Syrian, Afghan and Iraqi asylum-seekers. REUTERS

'Extremely dangerous' Dorian batters Bahamas, edges closer to Florida

Bahamas Press reported storm's first fatality, a 7-year-old boy.

Hurricane Dorian battered the Bahamas on Monday, peeling off roofs and snapping power lines as rising floodwaters threatened to engulf houses, and forecasters said the storm would creep closer to the U.S. coast, where more than a million people were ordered evacuated.

The Bahamas Press reported on Twitter that a boy had drowned in the northern Bahamas, the first recorded fatality of Dorian.

As many as 13,000 homes in the Bahamas may have been destroyed or severely damaged, the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies said.

The storm, one of the most powerful Atlantic hurricanes on record, was stalled over Grand Bahama Island, packing maximum sustained winds of 155 mph and moving at 1 mph, the Miami-based National Hurricane Center (NHC) said in an advisory. Dorian was expected to pound Grand Bahama for much of the day.

Strong winds and high surf were already being reported along Florida's east coast as the hurricane was about 110 miles from West Palm Beach, the center said, adding that Dorian would come dangerously close to the state Monday night through Wednesday evening.

Parts of Duval County, home to Jacksonville, one of Florida's two biggest cities, were under a mandatory evacuation. Palm Beach County, the state's third-most populated county and home to President Donald Trump's Mar-a-Lago resort, was among those with partial mandatory evacuations.

Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis urged coastal residents to heed evacuation orders. "Get out now while there's time and you have fuel available," he said in a news conference from the state's emergency operations center in Tallahassee.

In central Florida, Mary McNiff, 92, was waiting in a wheelchair to board a bus that would evacuate her from her retirement community in Kissimmee. "Right now I'm feeling pretty good. Kind of anxious to get it over with," she said.

There were no immediate estimates of casualties as Dorian covered the northwestern islands of Great Abaco and Grand Bahama with twisted metal and splintered wood.

Dorian was downgraded to a Category 4 storm on the five-step Saffir-Simpson Wind Scale late Monday morning. But the NHC said it would remain a powerful hurricane for the next couple of days.

The storm will raise water levels by as much as 18 to 23 feet above normal in areas of Grand Bahama and be accompanied by large and destructive waves, the NHC said. It warned of the risk of "extreme destruction on the island."

Residents posted images online of water rising up the side of their houses. Grand Bahama International Airport in Freeport was under five feet of water, according to the Bahamas Press.

Sophie Flay gives Metro the scoop on her new show with dad Bobby, "The Flay List."

MOLLY GIVEN
Molly.Given@metro.us

Many foodies and culinary fans know who Bobby Flay is, and you may even know a bit about his family as well. But with the acclaimed chef's latest show, "The Flay List," you will get to see a side of Flay that you wouldn't normally. Chef Flay has teamed up with his daughter Sophie, and the food-friendly family duo is showcasing some of New York City's best restaurants every week with their new project. Sophie Flay sat down with Metro to give the scoop on working with her dad and how she hand-picked some of the eateries on "The Flay List."

Where did the idea for "The Flay List" come from?

I do have to give credit to my dad, the idea for this show was definitely his. But we've always kind of thought about trying to do something [together]. I've appeared as a guest on some of his shows, but we've never really worked on a project side by side. I've never really wanted to be in food or be a chef, but I think he was hoping that one day I would want to do something surrounding food because it is such a big part of our lives together. So about a year ago, he came up with this idea to showcase some of the great restaurants in New York City, and luckily I was included in that idea.

How did you pick the eateries that you showcase in the show?

Well, I'm always doing research but these are spots that I had already loved, and it helped once we narrowed down the dish that we were going to focus on for each episode. I wanted to show something very different than what my dad shows because his takes are classic New York restaurants that I've been going to my whole life, so when I would hear the words "tacos" or "fried chicken," I would immediately think of these childhood spots where I remember him bringing me. So I really made sure to put in work to choose places that obviously have amazing flavors and were places that I loved, but definitely had a different vibe from the places I knew he was going to choose.

Was it hard narrowing down these spots?

It definitely varied, because of course there are so many amazing places to eat in New York City. It took a little time. I mean, fried chicken means so many different things now. You have Nashville fried chicken or Korean fried chicken ... there are so many different choices so it was definitely hard but I'm happy with what I chose.

Are there any episodes that stick out to you as memorable?

The burger episode at J.G. Melon really sticks out to me because I had grown up going there my whole life and we have a lot of family ties with the owners. I go there all of the time, no matter what, but being back there brought back all of these memories. It was special and it took me by surprise. That [episode] definitely stuck out to me in that regard.

What would you say was the best part about working on this project with your dad?

We've never done anything this big together, and to not only have created these memories but to have them for life is special. We will always have a copy of these episodes and we'll be able to look back on them. We sort of have a log showcasing all of our favorite spots in New York City now. So it's incredibly special.

Would you ever want to do a show like this again?

You know, I'm a local news reporter in L.A. for ABC 7, so I am very much on an early career path to be a reporter — that's what I want to do. But it's really fun to have this opportunity with my dad, it's so unique. If people wanted us to do another season it would absolutely be a ton of fun, but for now, I'm definitely going to stick to my journalism career.

Overall, what would you tell audiences to expect from "The Flay List"?

I think my dad described it perfectly. It's really his kind of love story to New York and we are able to showcase some of these amazing places that have been here for decades with a young twist. Anyone who's close with a parent or has a close father-daughter relationship can relate to this. My dad is so well-known for doing all of these shows and being an incredible chef, but he's also an incredible dad. I think that this is a side that not everyone has seen of him because we've never really done that much together. So you can definitely expect some very classic and playful scenes of my dad and I and see parts of our relationship that make it really special.

Catch "The Flay List" Thursdays at 10:30 p.m. ET on Food Network.

New documentary explores the underrated power of Linda Ronstadt

The new documentary "Linda Ronstadt: The Sound of My Voice" hits theaters this Friday.

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

When I sat down with filmmakers Rob Epstein and Jeffrey Friedman to talk about their new documentary, "Linda Ronstadt: The Sound of My Voice," they asked me how familiar I had been with the famed singer's career. Given how expansive and multi-faceted the legendary singer's career was during her 40-plus years in the spotlight, I felt sad to say that I had been unfamiliar with many of the risks she had been able to take as an artist. Of course, I knew the hits, as many of us do. But, what this new documentary is able to accomplish is a revelatory and well-rounded portrait of one of music's great trailblazers for those who, like me, may have not been aware.

During her astounding run — which was sadly sidelined in 2011 due to her struggle with Parkinson's disease — Tucson, Arizona native Ronstadt spanned several genres, including pop with her first hit "Different Drum," country, rock, Mexican romantic balladry, starring roles on Broadway, and even opera. There were no barriers that could contain Ronstadt's powerhouse of a voice.

"When her book came out — she wrote an autobiography called 'Simple Dreams' [in 2013] — she was on 'Fresh Air' with Terry Gross and it was one of those interviews where I was in a car and I had to pull over and listen to the whole thing," remembers Epstein. "I was so captivated by her telling her own musical journey story. I read the book and was taken by her literary voice and her own telling of her own experience. I thought it would be great to do this as a film and to do it with her really telling the story in the way she did in the book."

Epstein had been completely blown away by Ronstadt's life in entertainment and her willingness to lay it out bare in her book. He spoke with his filmmaking partner, Friedman, and after reading the book, he agreed that her story was a fascinating one that needed to be told through film.

"I had always been aware of her music and never really paid that much attention to it," says Friedman. "It was a part of the soundtrack of my formative years. I started to get interested in her when she started branching out into other styles. When she started singing opera and operetta, that blew my mind and captured my attention."

"Linda Ronstadt: The Sound of My Voice" hits theaters this Friday, Sept. 5.

Week 1 Pats issues overblown

The Pats are 7-2 in Week 1 games since the 2010 season.

MATT BURKE
matthew.burke@metro.us

The tired narrative you'll be hearing all this week is that the Patriots always start slow, and that a win over the Steelers this coming Sunday night is no sure thing.

But the fact of the matter is that the Pats' early-season issues typically come in Week 2, Week 3 or Week 4, and not in the inaugural game of the season. Here are all of the Patriots' first game outcomes since 2010:

2018: 27-20 Win vs.

Houston

2017: 42-27 Loss vs. KC

2016: 23-21 Win at Arizona

2015: 28-21 Win vs. Pittsburgh

2014: 33-20 Loss at Miami

2013: 23-21 Win at Buffalo

2012: 34-13 Win at Tennessee

2011: 38-24 Win at Miami

2010: 38-24 Win vs. Cincy

That's a 7-2 record. Now, here's how the Pats have fared in the first game of the season

Tom Brady jokes with Patriots receiver Demaryius Thomas.

GETTY IMAGES

following a Super Bowl title in the season prior.

2002: 30-14 Win vs. Pittsburgh

2004: 27-24 Win vs. Indianapolis

2005: 30-20 Win vs. Oakland

2015: 28-21 Win vs. Pittsburgh

2017: 42-27 Loss vs. Kansas City

That's a 5-1 record. A lot of these games were nail-biters as you can see, but as we know by now, Bill Belichick teams come out on the winning side of things more times than not in tight ball games.

Thomas in, Harry out

It didn't take long for Demaryius Thomas to return to the Patriots.

The former Broncos star was released by the Pats on cut-down day on Saturday but was re-signed Monday after the Pats placed rookie wideout N'Keal Harry on IR.

Harry has been battling ankle injuries this preseason. The Arizona State product is eligible to return to play for the Pats after eight weeks.

Thomas was excellent in the Patriots' final preseason game against the Giants last Thursday as he posted seven catches for 87 yards and a pair of TDs.

Aries Think big, but stick to what's reasonable. If you are practical but also imaginative, you will come up with a plan that will help expand your interests.

Taurus You've got what it takes to close a deal, finish what you start, attract support and motivate and inspire others. Don't waste time procrastinating; take action.

Gemini Someone will mislead you. Ask questions and distance yourself from anyone who is being pushy or trying to force you in a direction you shouldn't go. Keep your life simple.

Cancer Positive changes at home or work will lead to better relationships with the people you deal with daily. Love and romance are on the rise and will improve your personal life.

Leo Get busy. The less time you have to get involved in what everyone else is doing or saying, the better. Self-help, healthy living and personal growth are favored.

Virgo Follow the path that excites you the most. Getting involved in something new will lead to interesting encounters with people who motivate you to follow your heart.

Libra Buy only what you can afford. Living beyond your means will get you in trouble with someone who shares expenses with you. Do your best to keep the peace.

Scorpio If you share your feelings and desires with someone special, you'll find out where you stand and how best to move forward. Personal improvements at home and work will pay off.

Sagittarius Talks will be misleading. Listen carefully and decipher the meaning behind the words. Don't let gullibility cost you mentally, physically or financially. Moderation is encouraged.

Capricorn A change at home or work looks promising. Financial gain, greater responsibility and a higher title, along with some perks that will raise your self-esteem, are heading in your direction.

Aquarius Impulse purchases should be nipped in the bud. Think about every cent you spend. You cannot buy love or respect. The more you save, the better you will feel.

Pisces If you keep moving forward, inch by inch, you will get good results. You can count on loyal friends to help if you ask them. Don't be shy. Call in favors.
